Louisians, pursuant to suthority from Mr. Ilmooln. Delegates were only elected from those purishes which had been reclaimed by our troops from the robels. That Convention framed a Constitution which they submitted to the people. The people of the same parishes ratified the Constitution, and a State Government was elected and regardined. The Science Government was an experiment which was to be subject to the approval of Congress. The Convention, knowing that the State Government and Constitution would meet with viocan opposition in Congress, thought it a wise policy not to disadive, but to hold likely in readiness at any moment to comply with such requirement as might be made, and thus secure the admission of Representatives and Sensiors from Louisians without delay. The Convention therefore adjourned achieve to the call of its presiding officer.

In North Carolline, in 1866, a Convention for like purposes was elected under the orders of Mr. Johnson; the delegates were ciceded by a small portion of the people, yet the Convention framed a Constitution and declared it in force without saking popular approval Having put a State Government in existence, the Convention, following the course adopted in Louisians, adjourned subject to the call of the proper officer, and spent some alx weeks in remodeling the State Constitution and the convention for State Constitution. All this was done in North Carolins. Convention re-assembled pursuant to the call of the proper officer, and spent some alx weeks in remodeling the State Constitution. All this was done in North Carolins with the full knowledge of Andrew Johnson.

In Louisians, the President of the Convention is season be selled; the Governor ordered an election to fill the recausion, including all those districts and papilses not previously represented, because at that fine held by the rebels. The meeting on the Soth of July is the cone which Andrew Johnson declares was a lilegat; the re-assembling of the Convention is North Carolina was protected by the military arm of Young gave made mad the autorice instead to him. He would have retorfed upon the crowd in angry and savage majod, and it is very probable that his Clevisland, and even his St. Louis, orations would have been cast into the shade. For this imposed ellerges, the friends of Andrew Johnson have reason to be grateful. can mae the shade. For this imposed di-lemes, the friends of Andrew Johnson have reason to be grateful.

Note can deprecate violence or disorder more than we. And yet didrew Johnson has no one but himself to thank for whatever of rade-ness he received at the hands of the citicon of Indianapolis. The attempt of the Chinasa nees he received as the hands of the citizons of loidinaspolis. The attempt of the chinago Times to make it appear that the Freedent was in any personal danger, a simply absend. The sites of violence was not at all in the thoughts of the crowd. They simply took Johnson at his word. Ever state the left Washington, he has been notifying the people that he did not appear in the character of the President of the United States, but only as an American citizon. On these terms, of the own seeking, they accepted and dealt with him, not as President, but only as an American citizon. On these terms, of the own seeking, they accepted and the interest of the interest of the own seeking, they accepted and the interest of the own seeking, they accepted the foral people in every harmone to be, and the handle him off in his own coin. He has insulied the foral people in every harmone to be, and paid him off in his own coin. He has insulied the foral people in every harmone in his own seeking, they accepted in him off in his own coin. He has insulied the foral people in obager. They dempite would be inculted to longer. They dempite would be inculted to longer. They dempite would be inculted to longer. They dispitely of the complain because he got worsted in playing its. In addition to the cheering indusence of this reception, the President took to bed with him the comforting bewer from Maine. His friends have from Maine. His friends have from Maine. His friends have from Maine expensed in the selection, and Mr. Johnson is no doubt impressed with the great probability of their secess. We presume that when he gets to Louisville and finds himself among the congenial Copperheads and ex-robel soldies of Kenticky, he will take occasion to retort upon the Indianapolis crowd. We shall then have his opinion of the Housiers, expressed in his usual classical and lucid style.

VENTO OF THE SOUTHERN LOYALISTS.

As we have already annousced, a party of twenty-free loyal citizens of the South Yuling and Finds and Junion Thill delphis. Mr. Johnson's clerks, dare not have lifted a fager against the bounty bill, but with the permission and direction of the President. A single word of assent or a not from the permission and direction of the President. A single word of assent or a not from the Gressory would instantly have ceased his opposition. A hint from him to Raymond and Coyle would have caused the New York Towar and Intelligence to change front and advocate the bill. A word Le its favor to MecCilloch wealth have sent that Secretary to the Senate chamber to lobby for its passage. And yet the brasen faced oid demageque has the mendacity to stand up before the people of St. Louis and ask, "Weo has done more for the soldiers than I have?" - Fifth. In consequence of the stremons opposition of the President, through the Treasury Department, to the soldiers' equalization bill, the Senate by a pretty close vote refused to pass it—all the yeas being radicals and all the Johnsonites voting nay. The House was determined that it should pass, the opposition of the Administration to the contrary. Accordingly another bill was franced, and witsched to a General Appropriation bill, and passed, When it reached the Senate the opposition of Schisson through the Treasury Department, and the N. Y. Towas and other "my policy" papers, was redoubled; the oil cry of awamping the Treasury and destroying the credit of the Government was raised. It was alleged that the passage of the bill would send gold to 200, and that no reductions of internal tax-ation would be permissible or possible. Alarmed by those representations, the Senate is copyentered to the House, with a section increasing the pay of members £2,000 per anonam. When it came back to the House reinhersed the soldier's bounty, and stroke out the heavest of Congressional pay, all the Copperishnontists voting against working against working against would be the work to the House with a soldier's bounty, and trock out the increased Congressional pay, all the Copperishnontists voting against
